

At a time in our history when nothing is certain, when a pandemic has us in its grip, when fire and flood has become so regular, when far-right supremacists are sadly gaining momentum, it is imperative that we counteract this and other maladies in society with increased compassion. One concrete way of achieving this is to give a VOICE to first Nations People here in our great country. It is an absolute sin that we have not attended to this sooner. Before white man's arrival, the Aborigines lived in harmony. We changed that to their detriment. The time has come to rectify this. A voice enshrined in the constitution is not only fair but also a practical and safe proposal that will unify our great nation.
