To the Voice Secretariat

My Pathway is a social and economic development organisation that supports First Nations People and communities through government programs, community projects and Indigenous partnerships.

We currently employ more than 200 Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders. We have established partnerships with local Indigenous organisations in five remote communities and assisted to establish more than 100 Indigenous start-up businesses. We are dedicated to continuing our close work with Traditional Owners and community.

Our Board, Leadership and staff are invested in advancing First Nations People and eager to encourage and empower a stronger voice to governments. We recognise the structures that will facilitate an Indigenous Voice must reflect community needs and aspirations.

My Pathway is committed to supporting the Indigenous Voice design process and implementation by generating awareness through stakeholder engagements, internal and public communications.

We are open to contributing in other ways if requested by government or Indigenous communities.

It is our hope that Indigenous Voice will be enshrined in parliament, in a way that works for all Indigenous communities. Our country will benefit from decision-making that better reflects the needs of all Australians.
